Forecast For The United Kingdom
Issued by Met Office Exeter
at 1400 on Saturday 20 Nov 2021

UK Outlook for Thursday 25 Nov 2021 to Saturday 4 Dec 2021:
Through Thursday a band of rain clearing from the southeast during the day, with patchy overnight mist and fog ahead of it. Likely to be brighter to the north, with blustery showers in some coastal areas. Showers many be wintry in upland areas in the north. Tending to feel rather cold. As the period continues winds will be typically from the north and northwest allowing cold conditions to persist. High pressure is likely to sit to the south or southwest of the UK, bringing possible rain and showers to the north, wintry on high ground and perhaps at lower levels at times. Likely drier in the south, often largely settled with clear/sunny spells. Rather cold at times, with overnight frost likely.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.